ORAL CULTURE BRIDGE BETWEEN THE PAST AND THE FUTURE

Culture constitutes the identity of a given society and it acts as a bridge that links the old generation with the young one. Cultural elements- both tangible and intangible ones are passed down to the next generation in many ways. "Oral culture" products, i.e., "proverbs, idioms, epigrams, and everyday expressions", which stand out among the intangible cultural elements are considered as the most efficient means of communication transmitted from the old generation to the next one.

In this sense, it is of great importance that these cultural elements be taught mutually so that each community gets the chance to gain an insight into the perspective of life of each community. Our project partners are institutions that offer adult education in Germany, Austria, the Netherlands, England, Spain, Italy, Latvia, Poland, Portugal, Romania, Greece and Turkey. We hold this project important for a stronger EU because it aims to build a bridge whose bricks are oral cultural products from across Europe.

Participants in this project are expected to learn both these oral cultural products and the perspective of life of each community.

The meetings planned to be held during this project will allow each participant to identify which idioms, proverbs and expressions are used in a same situation by different communities.

Moreover, this project aims to create an intercultural awareness among the participant communities since the oral cultural products will be presented during the workshops and meetings. In addition, one of the objectives of the project is to allow each participant community to share their own oral cultural experience, which is planned to be disseminated via "Online e-dictionary" and "e-collection of bibliography".

This projects starts in August 2013 and if you are interested in participate in this project, please contact us via:
